

Sport et Citoyenneté

Le Sport au Service de la Société

New publication and website to promote sport as agent of social change

The launch of these two complementary communication tools marks the birth of Sport et Citoyenneté (Sport and citizenship). This new European association is set to become a strategic player on the European stage, its central goal being to promote sport's fundamental values.

In its new quarterly publication, Sport et Citoyenneté will offer readers a 'brainstorm' on the rapidly evolving role of sports in our society. Scientists and practitioners will share their ideas and experience of sport as an increasingly vital factor of social cohesion.

In this very first edition -published under the patronage of former European Commission President Jacques Delors and UEFA President Michel Platini- politicians, sportsmen (Lilian Thuram, Mikaël Silvestre...) and a range of independent voices exchange opinions.

A new website (www.sportetcitoyennete.org) will present special projects under the Sport et Citoyenneté banner. This site will also give practical support to the hundreds of individuals and groups involved in these projects.
